Dear Mr. Whyrick:

I am writing in response to your letter dated December 26, 2002 regarding the Turner for Congress campaign committee.

Your letter references two contributions that appear to exceed the limits set forth in the Act.

In the case of Anne Frayne, her contribution was reattributed to her husband, Theodore Hoy, who is a joint holder of the account. This reattribution will be reflected on the committee's year-end report.

In the case of Lewis for Congress, this was an error on my part. The contribution was received on October 16, 2002, but the committee did not discover the over contribution until it received your letter dated December 26, 2002. The committee immediately issued a refund to the Lewis for Congress committee upon discovery of the problem and this refund will be reflected on the committee's year-end report. I apologize for the error on our part. Excessive contributions is a serious violation and Turner for Congress takes great care to comply with the law and avoid any violation of the limitations imposed by law. I can assure you that this is an isolated incident and will not happen again.

Please do not hesitate to call me at 614/529-1394 if you have any further questions.

Thank you,

Natalie Baur
